Joker

1970, Hans-Jörg Nürnberger, https://boardgamegeek.com/boardgame/17791

The game is played on the following 13x13 board, each player has 11 pieces that start in their first row, also each player has two rings and two discs (the jokers)

On a turn, a player may move or jump a figure in a straight line.

- Standard Move: A figure moves as many spaces as it has rings. You do not have to use the full movement range, but you cannot move onto or over occupied spaces.
- Jumping: A figure may jump over any number of friendly or opposing pieces in a straight line. The number of possible jumps is determined by the number of rings on the figure.

Jokers: The two discs are called "Jokers." A player can use them to occupy empty spaces. These discs then act like figures and can be used to facilitate jumps. [not sure if this action occupies an entire turn]

Goal. Your target squares are your opponent's starting squares. If an opponent reaches a target square, it must be cleared as quickly as possible. Figures move normally within the target area.
